Hollywood Magic and Laramie’s Western History

Laramie is rich in western history; Native Americans, fur trappers, Fort Sanders, the UP Railroad and famous outlaws made up just a part of our western heritage. Hollywood built on Laramie’s western heritage to base its movies and TV shows. The 1950s and 1960s were the heyday for westerns, from shows like “Lawman” (1958-62) starring John Russell, “Laramie” (1959-63) starring John Smith and Robert Fuller, films like “The Man From Laramie” (1955) starring James Stewart, “Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid” (1969) starring Paul Newman and Robert Redford to more modern western shows like “Hell on Wheels” starring Anson Mount. Laramie has had its share of western shows. Make sure you’re in town for this year’s Laramie Jubilee Days, with our special guest Robert Fuller - July 13-15, 2017. HISTORIC WYOMING WOMEN
The Wyoming House for Historic Women honors 1. Louisa Gardner Swain: The first woman in the world to cast a ballot under laws giving women full equality to men, September 6, 1870. The 19th Amendment was passed in 1920, 50 years after Louisa casted the first vote! 2. Eliza Stewart: The first woman subpoenaed to serve on a court jury. She was Laramie’s first school teacher and her notice for jury duty was delivered in March of 1870. Eliza went on to establish Laramie’s first library. 3. Martha Symons Boies: She arrived in Laramie, Wyoming in a horse drawn cart with her children in 1868. She became the first woman in the world appointed as a bailiff. Her appointment took place in March of 1870 in Laramie, Wyoming. Go to: thelouisawainfoundation.com

Honoring The World’s First Woman Voter - Early in the morning on September 6, 1870 in Laramie, Wyoming Louisa Swain became the first woman in the world to cast a ballot under laws giving women full equality with men! In the fall of 2008, 138 years later, the U.S. Congress passes a resolution proclaiming September 6th as “Louisa Swain Day” in recognition of this historic event.
PHOTOGRAPHY
Abundant wildlife, dramatic alpine scenes and jumbled rock formations make the area around Laramie a feast for the lens of any photographer. Professional and amateur photographers can delight in days spent shooting the shifting light on the grandeur of the surrounding Rocky Mountains, and bring home memories to last a lifetime.

ALBANY

Less than a hundred people are lucky enough to call Albany home. This lovely location, nestled in a canyon at the base of the soaring Snowy Range Mountains, attracts thousands of visitors each year. Most of them find their way to the Albany Lodge, where delicious food and comfortable accommodations await. Everyone from thrill-seeking adventurers to vacationers looking to unwind can find something to enjoy at this charming lodge, thirty-five miles west of Laramie.

BUFORD

PhinDeli Town Buford, originally known as Buford, is an unincorporated community in Albany County, Wyoming. It is located between Laramie and Cheyenne on Interstate 80. At 8,000 feet (2,438 m) of elevation, this is the highest populated settlement along the First Transcontinental Railroad (today’s Overland Route), and on the transcontinental Interstate 80. The town was originally named Buford (in honor of Major General John Buford), a Union cavalry officer during the American Civil War. In 2013, the town was sold to a Vietnamese owner, who re-branded it as “PhinDeli Town Buford”. The postal addresses, however, still bear the town’s original name of “Buford”. In 2013, the population of the town was 1.

CENTENNIAL

Thirty miles west of Laramie you will find a community known as Centennial which was originally settled by workers for the first Transcontinental Railroad. The nearby Medicine Bow National Forest provided the wood for the ties that would connect the Union Pacific and Central Pacific lines. Later, the discovery of gold lured miners, prospectors and merchants to the area. Centennial is now a year-round resort, rustic yet comfortable, that serves as the Gateway to the Snowy Range.

ROCK RIVER

When Union Pacific moved the railroad line west of the Rock Creek Station in 1898, the town of Rock River was born. About 250 people call this quaint town, located forty miles northwest of Laramie, home. Explore the rich history of this unique place which has a friendly small town feel that is hard to find in the modern world.

WOODS LANDING

Travelers looking for peace and quiet amid the grandeur of the Snowy Range Mountains need look no further than the tiny hamlet of Woods Landing, twenty-five miles southwest of Laramie. Whether just passing through or hoping to stay a few days, Woods Landing offers the weary traveler a chance to step back in time and enjoy old-fashioned hospitality and family values while enjoying the spectacular scenery.

THE SNOWY RANGE SCENIC BYWAY (WY 130)

This scenic alternative to I-80 takes you through the majestic Snowy Range, past glittering glacial lakes, pastoral meadows, rushing mountain streams and awe inspiring granite peaks. Enjoy fantastic fishing, hiking, climbing and skiing en route, with plenty of spots to stop and view wild life. A variety of campgrounds, resorts and cabins provide lodging along the way.
Jacques La Ramee
French Canadian fur trader and mountain man Jacques La Ramee arrived in what is now the state of Wyoming in 1815. Five years later he arrived for a season of trapping along the river that now bears his name; he was never seen or heard from again. Details surrounding his disappearance are still unknown, but the town of Laramie, two rivers, a fort, a county and a mountain peak bear his name today.

Fort Sanders
Originally established as a military post on July 19, 1866, Fort Sanders was first known as Fort John Buford and later named for General William P. Sanders. Very little of the mostly wooden fort exists today other than some of the original stones of the guard house. This fort was built to protect travelers on the Overland Trail and workers who were constructing the Union Pacific Railway from hostile Indian attacks. Remnants can still be seen three miles south of Laramie on Highway 287.

The Arrival of Union Pacific
Union Pacific construction crews laid the track connecting Laramie to the rest of the country on May 4, 1868; a few passengers arrived the same day and regular service began less than a week later. The arrival of the railroad inspired entrepreneurs to build more permanent structures in what had been a “Hell on Wheels” tent city. For a few months Laramie was the western hub of the Union Pacific Railroad, but even after track was laid to points further west, Laramie’s reputation and population continued to grow.

A Bright Idea
In August of 1878, famed inventor Thomas Edison traveled to what is now the state of Wyoming to observe a solar eclipse. During his stay he came up with the idea for a filament light bulb, either while staring into a campfire or when his fly fishing rod broke in two. This invention led to the first electrical plant in the Rocky Mountains, located in present day Laramie, which lit up the surrounding night sky and earned the city the nickname the “Gem City of the Plains.”

Louisa Swain was the first woman in the world to cast a ballot under the law giving women full equality to men in Albany County Wyoming on September 6, 1870. Earning Wyoming the name “The Equality State.”

WYOMING TERRITORIAL PRISON
Built in 1872, the Wyoming Territorial Prison housed over a thousand “evil doers of all classes and kinds,” including the notorious Butch Cassidy. In 1903, after the completion of a new prison in Rawlins, the University of Wyoming incorporated the buildings and grounds into the College of Agriculture. Over eighty years later the state took over administration of the facility and renovated several structures, creating a museum that is open seasonally to the public. (307) 745-3733

AMES MONUMENT
The highest point on the original Transcontinental Railroad and marked by a 60 ft. tall granite pyramid, erected in 1882 and now a popular tourist attraction. This July the Amës Monument will be added to the National Historic Landmark registry. From I-80 take the Vedauwoo Exit and head south on Monument Road.
UW ART MUSEUM
The University of Wyoming Art Museum and American Heritage Center are located in a dramatic building which sits on the northern edge of campus. Rising like a dark mountain from the surrounding plains, this building houses one of the finest art collections in the state, and also serves as a repository for manuscripts, rare books and official archives. Visitors are drawn from around the world to this incredible collection, and admission is free. Call: (307) 766-6622

LARAMIE PLAINS MUSEUM
The Ivinson Mansion, which now houses the Laramie Plains Museum, was home to Edward and Jane Ivinson who finished its construction in 1893. In 1960 local citizens saved the house from demolition and dedicated it to showcasing local area artifacts. The museum has seasonal daily hour-long guided tours. Call: (307) 742-4448

UW GEOLOGICAL MUSEUM
The University of Wyoming's Geological Museum displays one of only five full brontosaurus skeletons in the world, along with the bones of many other prehistoric behemoths. Kids love the informative and interactive exhibits; parents love the educational opportunities and the free admission. Conveniently located on the UW campus, this treasure trove is open every day except holidays and Sunday. Call: 307-766-2646

THE LINCOLN MONUMENT
East of Laramie on Interstate 80 at exit 323 you will be greeted by an enormous bronze sculpture of Abe Lincoln's head that weighs over two tons. The monument was completed in 1959 to honor the 150th anniversary of Lincoln's birth and was placed at the highest point along the Old Lincoln Highway (US 30).
